FOR SUPERVISOR—CLOVER HILL DISTRICT

FOR SUPERVISOR — STONE-WALL DISTRICT

Voters will also vote for three Justices of Peace and one Constable in each district. You will also vote for one Overseer Poor in each district.

There will be no name on the ticket for Senator. Clerk of Court or Sheriff—these gentlemen have no opposition and have been declared the nominees of the party.

Four years ago the judges of election excluded 147 voters who did not answer questions to the judges satisfactorily touching their right to vote in the primary. There was a filed contest by A R. Harwood and A. H. Clement who claimed that they were honestly elected, but the court sustained the ruling of the Committee and the judges and awarded the election to R. F. Burke and Joel W Flood.

Had the 147 votes been counted as sworn to be cast for Herwood and Clement, Harwood would have had a majority over Mr. Burke of 31 votes and Clement a majority over Mr. Flood of 53 votes.

It is claimed for most of the 147 excluded voters four years ago, that they have unquestionably purged themselves of every objection by voting the Democratic ticket at general elections for four years.

Upon challenge any voter who can say that "at the last general election (November) in which he or she voted they voted the Democratic ticket and will support the Democratic ticket at next election shall be allowed to vote" and no judge of election who regards his oath of office will do anything to deprive such person of the right to vote.

All persons qualified to vote in the primary should register and cast a vote in this important election. There are more than 2300 eligible voters on the list as tax-payers, and it is expected that 2,000 of them will go to the polls on election day. With such a vote cast no man can complain of the expression rendered for or against him.

Let us do your next printing.

Co-Ops

M. L. Corey of Richmond, one of receivers of the defunct Co-operative Tobacco Association was in Appomattox Friday and talked to farmers and business men on the situation.

He said there was on hand about 20,000,000 pounds of tobacco still unsold, and that he would make no predictions as to the final outcome of the settlements when all of the crop on hand was sold, and this depended entirely on what price could be secured for the goods on hand.

Mr. Corey said that there was raised last year about 43 million more pounds of tobacco and that it sold for an average of 6 to 8 cents per pound against the average price of the year before of 16 cents and as against 18 cents average during the life of the association

While not insisting upon a new organization, Mr. Corey declared that if such a one could be effected he saw no reason why the price of tobacco could not be raised for the coming year from 4 to 6 cents higher which would be a great aid in getting better prices for the amount now on hand as well as for the farmers themselves. He was of the opinion that an organization of the bright belt could not be secured as the prices there were very satisfactory but he did think it possible for the farmer in the dark belt by virtue of low prices last year, and also by the fact that they were all so close together could by hard effort get a new organization if the proper kind of contracts and regulations were allowed.

As to some of the features he thought it would be wise to introduce, would be to require only a 75 per cent minimum sign-up, and to the contracts make it optional with the farmers as to whether they would sell on the floor or pool; if prices were satisfactory, sell, otherwise, pool. He advised that no fees be charged for joining as has been the case heretofore, and each year if any farmer wished to withdraw he be allowed to do so. He would appeal to the honor of the farmer to stick to the association and allow intervals when he might honorable withdraw if he saw fit. Mr. Corey is anxious and so is the Intermediate Credit Bank to see dark tobacco go up. Of course, all of Appomattox would join in any effort to boost the price of dark tobacco.

Matrons' Hats Combine Straw With Fabric

The high crowns which have been such a subject of discussion are of especial appeal to the matron who appreciates headwear of style and dignity. The tall-crowned felts which Paris persists in sending over are exceptionally becoming to the woman of mature years. Milliners are creating hats which carry "lots of style" for the matron, of fabric with straw, using exquisite embroidery also.

Color Artistry Enhances the Ensemble Costume

This season's ensembles display a fine artistry in color blending as well as in styling. The mode calls not only for the compose of separate colors, but it emphasizes the use of varying tones and tints of the same color. In the picture the dress is of rose-beige crepe satin, the coat of suede cloth in darker tone.

Supple Straws and Felts Share Millinery Honors

Shall it be felt or straw? Have to toss pennies for the answer. Never such alluring felts so artfully manipulated, never more captivating straws, especially soft crochet visca shapes, also wide-brimmed milans, grosgrain ribbon-trimmed!

Springtime Silken Frocks in Two-Tone Coloring

Visions of delectable springtime colors are the youthful afternoon frocks of crepe de chine, flat crepe and crepe-back satin. Two-tone is the theme of their compose, interpreted in varying shades of the same color, or in definite contrasts. The lovely gown in the picture combines bois de rose flat crepe with monkeyskin, the new pink.

Tots' Hats Cunningly Shirred or Beribboned

Lovable, kissable little faces will peep out from tiny spring bonnets of chiffon, net and silk shirred and frilled most becomingly. So much for the wee tots' "spring bonnet." For older little girls, straw hats stress crowns, bands and cloches.

Unsalaried Officers Run 8-Mile Railroad

Manchester, Iowa.—The Manchester & Onelda railroad has a director for every half mile of track. The eight-mile standard gauge line never declared a dividend, never paid a salary to any officer except the traffic manager, never passed an interest payment and never levied an assessment against its stockholders. And for the first time in its 25 years it is making money, by virtue of substitution of electric motive power for the steam engine, which caused operating losses for many years.

The road was built by Manchester business men in 1901 because Manchester had shipping facilities over but one railroad. The town voted a 5 per cent tax for its construction and local men built it, all materials being bought here in so far as possible. It was run to Onelda, 8.028 miles away, linking the Illinois Central and the Chicago Great Western with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

Shares of stock in the road are regarded by citizens as the badges of boosters. The road never has had a personal injury claim. Maj. Edward M. Carr, its first president, is chairman of its managing board.

WALTON TO BE BACK

Altho the school board has not changed its decision to cut the salary of the principal of the Lawrenceville school from $2,400 to $2,000, and Mr. Walton has declared that he could not accept the position for that figure, he will be back on the job next year. But that is because the $400 has been guaranteed to him by private subscription by the patrons of the school, so Mr. Walton is not taking the place for the $2,000 salary.

Mr. Walton's work here has been of such a nature that most of the people wanted him back, tho they did not blame him for not accepting the reduced salary. So rather than lose him, several well-wishers of the school got busy and raised to $400 so that he might be retained.—Lawrenceville Gazette.

Will Walton is the son Capt. T. A. Walton, of this town, and his friends are glad to note this public testimonial to an old Appomattox's boys worth.

PLANTS ALSO HAVE DISEASE CARRIERS

Leaf Hopper Found to Spread Yellows Disease.

New York.—Just as yellow fever is due to an invisibly small germ or virus carried from person to person by an insect so are some of the most serious and destructive illnesses of plants due to invisibly small germs carried from plant to plant by an insect.

In a report to the Engineering Foundation Dr. L. O. Kunkel, plant pathologist at the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research, Yonkers, tells how a little gray insect, the aster leaf hopper, spreads the yellows disease of asters by first biting sick plants and then, after the virus has had ten days to incubate in its interior, biting healthy ones and planting the infection in their tissues.

Carries it to Fifty Others.

The same leaf hopper that transmits yellows to the China aster also carries it to more than fifty other species of wild and cultivated plants. Lettuce is one of the most important hosts of aster yellows. On this plant it has long been known in the Southwest as the Rio Grande disease and in New York and other eastern states as the white heart disease. In the winter yellows lives on perennial weed hosts. During the summer, when the carrier leaf hopper is very active, it spreads rapidly to susceptible annual plants, such as the China aster and lettuce.

Spread of aster yellows and its host range depend largely on the likes and dislikes of the aster leaf hopper. The African marigold is quite susceptible but seldom takes the disease even when grown adjacent to yellowed aster plants. The leaf hopper does not like the marigold and seldom feeds upon it when other plants are available. If confined in a cage containing only marigold plants hunger drives it to feed upon them and they readily take the disease. It is fortunate that although wheat and other cereal crops are favorite hosts of this leaf hopper they are immune to the yellows.

Disease Known Only Here.

The aster leaf hopper is thought to have been accidentally introduced into the United States from Europe fifty or more years ago. Although it is prevalent in Europe and the Orient, where the China aster is extensively grown, the aster yellows disease is known only in America. Thus a disease which is apparently endemic in America has been rendered much more serious through the importation of a European leaf hopper, and of an oriental plant, the China aster.

No satisfactory means is known of controlling the aster leaf hopper, but the yellows which it spreads can be held in check by digging out all infected perennial weed hosts in the vicinity of the field to be protected and by destroying all diseased annuals as soon as observed. A yellowed plant is a menace to nearby healthy plants just as a malaria patient is a menace to a healthy community in a region infested with the Anopheles mosquito.

Find Old Roman Town on Farm in Britain

London.—Recent discoveries in and around the town of Stockbridge, Hampshire, have led archeologists to believe that the site of a former Roman town has been discovered.

In 1924 Ernest Barnard discovered on his 830 acre farm the foundations of two Roman baths and three villas. He has since unearthed the positions of over a dozen other Roman buildings.

Among the more recent discoveries are several hundred copper coins, parts of a tortoise-shell necklace, an oyster opener, a razor, a quantity of broken pottery and two grinding stones.

Barnard has also discovered what he believes to have been a Roman vineyard, with terraces cut in the rising upland. Further finds were two large stones, probably forming the bases of pillars of the entrance gates of an imposing Roman building.

Roman bricks have been found built into the walls of an Elizabethan cottage in the town, while in the neighboring village of Kings Somborne several people have collected quite a show of Roman and early British relics.

Such importance is attached to the discoveries that a British museum expert is making a personal investigation.

Lord Balfour Admits He's Lazy and Likes It

London.—Lord Balfour is a lazy man—and admits it.

"I am a great lover of idleness myself, though I never say much about it, and I always love to hear that there are to be certain hours of the day when no one will ask me to do anything," the former prime minister said at a luncheon of the National Institute of Industrial Psychology.

"The institute is engaged upon one of the most important tasks facing people engaged in social welfare," Lord Balfour went on. "That is the complete explosion of the superstition that all hours of work are a minus quantity in the happiness of life and all hours of idleness a plus quantity."

Lord Balfour's idea of perfect bliss and laziness is to listen to performances of Handel or He in bed and read "thrillers" or detective stories.

PROSPECTOR WINS IN RACE FOR GOLD

Dog Team Beats Motor Bus in Dash for Claim.

Winnipeg, Man.—Probably there is no spectacle which will stir the emotional impulses of a community to a greater extent than a race, and when the race is for gold the tension is heightened. That is why this city still is talking of the sensational race to file ownership on a gold claim on new ground at Slate lake, north of here, between Mickey Gilleran, an independent prospector and William Todd, the representative of a wealthy mining company.

Following the strike Gilleran and Todd started for Winnipeg to obtain papers necessary to enable them to stake additional ground close to their claims. The race to the city was even and, the papers in their possession, the men retraced their steps for the final dash to the rich dirt.

Both men got away from Winnipeg at the same time and on the same train, but Gilleran stopped off at a wayside station when the train stopped for a moment and telephoned ahead to have a dog team in readiness when the end of steel was reached. At this place Todd took passage on a motorbus which operated for several miles, but Gilleran drove his dog team all night and passed the bus unnoticed in the darkness.

When his dog team tired as a result of being pushed to the limit, Gilleran halted 28 miles from his destination and sent the team back. He covered the remaining distance on foot.

On arrival at the site of the claims Gilleran staked them in his name and started back to Winnipeg to record them. On the return trip he met Todd and his party, who thought they had left him far behind. Disgusted at being bested in a race he thought he had won by a wide margin, Todd conceded his chagrin and congratulated the winner.
